Consulting Engineers Awards Road Show

VANCOUVER, BC The Consulting Engineers of British Columbia (CEBC) have recently released a panel exhibit of their Awards for Engineering Excellence competition entries to the public for the first time.

“The panels represent world class engineering projects that have been designed and built by some of BC’s finest consulting engineering firms”, said Arnold Badke, CEBC’s President. “It is time for the public to know the engineering story behind the scenes of these famous BC landmarks,” he said.

The display will be open to public from October 30th to December 15th at the District of North Vancouver’s Municipal Hall, 355 Queens’s Rd. W., North Vancouver.

It will resume in March, 2007 following the announcements of the new awards competition and will tour to various venues through the year.

The Consulting Engineers of British Columbia (CEBC) was incorporated as a society in 1976 to improve the business environment for consulting engineering firms by increasing public awareness of the value of selecting CEBC member firms for consulting design and build work

CEBC represents 95 firms including 5,700 members of their consulting engineering teams. Member firms range in size from sole proprietorship to large multinational corporations.
